

Just Culture Guiding Principles

Alberta Health Services is committed to a just culture, an environment where everyone feels safe, encouraged, and enabled to discuss quality and safety concerns.

When there is a need to review a situation where something went wrong, whether in a clinical or non-clinical area:

Everyone will be able to trust that AHS has effective processes in place to support this fair and consistent approach, and that these processes will be followed.

This is one of seven guiding principles in place to help us live a just culture. Learn more about just culture and its guiding principles at <http://insite.albertahealthservices.ca/4742.asp>

Despite our best efforts, there is always the potential for something to go wrong. When that happens, staff will be supported and treated with care, compassion, respect and dignity.
